

Where Men Are "Pretty."

A British investigator is ungallant enough to state that the reason why women are as a rule of a beauty not attained by men lies in the fact that they are more indolent and not so prone to "exercise their brains" as men are. Intellectual labors and assiduous attention to business are, according to this authority, matters extremely prejudicial to the development of physical beauty.

In support of his theory this Briton points to the Zeros, a tribe of British India. Among them, it appears, women hold the place that in other countries is pre-empted by men. The Zero woman manages the affairs of state, engages in business on her own account and does not restrict herself in the narrow field of woman elsewhere. On the other hand, the Zero man has nothing to do but cook the meals and look after the children. The natural result of all this, says our scientist, is that the men of this singular tribe are "very pretty" and the women unusually plain.

Once Enough.

"I am not an inquisitive man," said the minister, "but there is one thing I would like to know. Why do people who marry more than once never get the minister who tied the first knot to tie the second or third or fourth?"

"I have married enough couples to earn for me the title of marrying parson. Many of those people were prominent enough socially to get their doings recorded in the newspapers and I learn through that medium that a fairly large percentage of them marry again. But they never ask me to officiate."

"Why don't they? Didn't I bring them good luck the first time? Has their experience prejudiced them against me personally, or is there a superstition that prevents a man being married twice by the same minister?"

"Even members of my own congregation who marry again seek a strange minister. Why?"

First Telescope Preserved.

Very few people are aware that the first practical telescope—the one which Galileo used in discovering the satellites of Jupiter in January, 1610, is still in existence and preserved at the Museum of Physics and Natural History in Florence. It is about three hundred years ago since this instrument was first turned toward the heavens. Unlike the present astronomical type, it had a concave instead of a convex eyepiece, just like the opera glasses now in use. When Galileo first exhibited his new telescope to the doge and an enthusiastic assembly he was overwhelmed with honors, because it was thought that the instrument would give the soldiers and sailors of the republic a great advantage over their enemies.—Strand Magazine.

A discovery results in an art; an art produces a comfort; a comfort made cheaply accessible adds family on family to the population; and a family is a new creation of thinking, reasoning, inventing, and discovering beings. Thus, instead of arriving at the end, we are at the beginning of the series, and ready to start with recruited numbers on the great and beneficent career of useful knowledge.—Edward Everett.

Pig Lived Long Without Food.

Missed from a farm near Ramsgate, England, two months ago, a pig, which had apparently been covered in during the building of a haystack, was found alive in the stack, but very weak.

Memorial to Aviators.

At Louveciennes there is a memorial which commemorates the ascent of the first Montgolfier balloon. The brothers Montgolfier were on friendly terms with the celebrated statesman Boissy d'Anglas, and they offered to make their first experiment in his park. After the famous ascent, Francois Antoine Boissy d'Anglas erected a little column to commemorate the event, simply bearing the date. The ravages of time are seen on the column, and the date is almost obliterated. To the casual observer this famous landmark is only a mystery, but Boissy d'Anglas evidently saw the possibility of aerial flight by erecting this modest memorial.

Pen and Paper.

"Paper," whether of rags or of wood pulp, still takes its name from the papyrus. A "book" is the beech, the wooden rod on which our forefathers cut their runic letters. And a "pencil" is still by derivation "pencil," a little tail, having been originally the name of the Roman painter's brush.

Studies in Gratitude.

"All I got for my trouble was a 'thank you,'" said the man who begrudges friendly effort. "You're lucky," replied the billionaire philanthropist. "I'm expected to say 'thank you' to people who find me a suitable method of giving my money away."

Disproven. Cynicus—It is quite impossible for a woman to keep a secret. Henpeckke—I don't know about that. My wife and I were engaged for several weeks before she said anything to me about it.

The Philosopher of Folly. "I need not tell you," says the Philosopher of Folly, "that when an orator starts with the words 'I need not tell you,' he goes right ahead and tells you what he needs."

How to Give Advice. A man takes contradiction and advice much more easily than people think, only he will not bear it when violently given, even though it be well founded. Hearts are flowers; they remain open to the softly falling dew, but shut up in the violent downpour of rain.—J. P. Richter.

Animal Early Loses Markings. At what age does the little tapir lose his markings? A tapir born four months ago in the London zoo is a plump little animal, exactly like his parents, except it is strongly barred with white horizontal stripes, while, as everybody knows, old tapirs are plain, dark slate color. But now, after four months, the stripes are disappearing, those at the head being the first to go. Time has solved the problem.—New York Press.

"Title Talks"

The Business of Abstracting

The business of Abstracting titles is of comparatively recent growth. As lands increase in value, the need of title security becomes more and more imperative.

It is just as sensible to safeguard the title to a thousand dollar vacant lot or to any other property, as it is to keep your thousand dollar bond under lock and key.

PROTECTION IN EITHER CASE IS THE THING SOUGHT. Good titles make real estate as negotiable as stocks and bonds. There is no way of being sure about the title except by the help of an abstract by a reliable company.
